

To Whom It May Concern,

I am a subscriber to satellite radio and I do not want my ability to choose this service taken away. If the NAB feels threatened by the success of satellite radio, they should concentrate and focus on competing and improving their services so that they could be the most viable choice for consumers such as myself. If the NAB was worth listening to, then satellite services would never have become as popular as they are now, and as they are growing every moreso daily. The NAB's reaction to inevitable competition is for them to want the government to protect their businesses by attacking satellite radio.

This same group has tried to block every innovative technology that has been warmly welcomed into America's homes and cars. In the 1940's, radio broadcasters tried to squash television. In the 1970's, AM broadcasters tried to put the kibosh on FM stations. I sincerely hope that you will not attempt to halt or impede the ability of satellite radio to respond to a consumer demand that the NAB is either unwilling or unable to meet.

Kindest Regards,

Gary Pena
